All in the detail

By Nicole Bittar

Less has always been more. Victorian-era dramatist/poet Robert Browning may have coined the phrase, which was also famously adopted by architectural luminary Mies van der Rohe to define the minimalist movement. Yet, regardless of etymology, these statement pieces have been designed to shine without the aid of interior co-stars.

Designer sofa, standout chair, a rug to floor you and appealing sides take centre stage and prove irrefutably that the decorative impact is always in the detail.
